BIO

In 2010 I studied and completed an Access to HE Diploma in Engineering and Technology at Newcastle College. Following the completion of my first year at Brighton University I have just transferred from Computer Science to Digital Media Development in order to follow a career path which I feel much more passionately about, but as it is late into the first semester, they have recommended to put off the switch until next year. So currently I am waiting till September 2017 to begin my course in Digital Media Development. Until then I am eager to get working, both for experience, and for interim subsidy to fund my studies. Throughout my working career (in the times between study) I have proven to be a very reliable and precise employee, helping to improve and innovate where possible. I am confident that I will bring a new dimension to whatever team I am on, and will always strive for perfection with my work.

INTERESTS & ACTIVITIES

Local Defence Force Unit

As a member of the Falkland Islands Defence Force (FIDF) which is a Voluntary Territorial Army Service of the Falkland Islands, I have worked as part of a section in basic infantry soldier training. One of the biggest challenges I found during my time in the FIDF was when I was chosen and travelled to the UK for an International Combat Shooting Competition at Bisley/Pirbright. This involved long days of training, and competing in challenging military shoots that were designed to replicate military combat. As a member of the team I had to ensure I was fit enough to successfully complete the physical challenges and to ensure that I learnt the shoots and procedures involved in the competitions. Throughout my time there I was pushed to my physical limit, but continued to produce good results in the competitions, and exceeded mine and my teams expectations. This helped me to realise how important team work, efficient training and mental preparation is in achieving good results.

Sports and Fitness

I have a passion for sport. I have competed internationally in 2005 and 2007 as one of the only two people to play table tennis for the Falkland Islands at the Small Island Games and also represented the Falklands playing football at the Island Games in Jersey in 2015.

Other sports I also enjoy are badminton, squash and tennis. Recently I have become highly involved in a workout regime and am enjoying bringing my physical fitness up to a higher standard.

Travel and Leisure Pursuits

Travelling is something I enjoy whenever possible. As a Falkland Islander I take advantage of the various outdoor activities like fishing, surfing and cross country motorbike riding. I also play the guitar and drums to a high standard.
